DON'T KNOW HOW TO BEGIN.

THE INVESTIGATION OF THE CUSTOM HOUSE IS DELICATE WORK.

MR. PAIRCHILD AND MR. MAGONE WOULD BE PLEASED TO FIND OUT HOW TO DO IT WITHOUT REFLECTING ON

THEIR OWN RECORDS. The Commission appointed to investigate the Custom ise met yesterday in the Barge Office, and in promises to the contrary made by each ember of it, the session was executive. were good reasons for this. Both Charles S. Fairchild and Daniel Magone were anxious to learn just where they could begin the investigation, and not bring up anything that might reflect upon them as officials who were in control at the close of the first Cleveland Administration. Mr. Falichild was then Secre-tary of the Treasury, and Mr. Magone was Collector of the Port. It is a delicate point in their minds to know just where they ought to berin.

The Commission met at the Barge Office at 10 a. m. yesterday, but some time before that hour Mr. Magone as on hand. Mr. Magone is anxious that the Government shall receive full value for his $10 a day ser vices, if the number of hours work a day that he "puts in" can accomplish it. Poindexter Dunn was not in so great a hurry. He did not reach the Bargo Office until some time later. The guard who had been placed at the door to protect the members of the inquisition from assaults from the outside did not know him, and refused to admit him to the room siderable shock to him, for since his appointment as a member of this Commission Mr. Dunn has imagined that every one knew all about him. After Mr. Magene came out and vouched for him, telling the doorkeeper that he really was Mr. Dunn, he was admitted, but he was much broken in spirits. Mr. Fairchild did not seem to be in a hurry to get to work, for it was some time after the hour when the Commission was to meet that he strolled into the building and joined the other two members of the About this time W. MacFarlane, the Anti-Snapper lawyer who was added to the Commission at a late date, entered the room. Mr. MacFar lane was, another man who took a prominent part in organizing the Anti-Snap movement in this State, and this is the return for his activity. All that is expected of him is to look wise, ask a few questions and turn in a large bill for legal services. After all of the members of the Commission had got to-gether they locked themselves in a room and began to talk. They were discussing the information contained in the various bundles of documents that had been sent in from the Treasury Department when interrupted them. He had come on from Washington with a lot of papers and many instructions from Secretary Carlisle. He remained with the Commisstoners some time, and it was learned that he told them what to do to bring out the political points that the Commission is expected to make in the Interest of the present Administration. Mr. Hamili was with the Commissioners several hours, and he hurried off, valise in hand, to catch a train for Washington to consult further with Mr. Carlisle. Just before he went away, a tall, slim man tried to get admittance to the room, but the doorkeeper would the officer a card to take in to the Commissioners. The doorkeeper nearly fainted away when he read the the card. It was Logan S. Carlisle. Mr. Carlisle did not have to stay outside m ny min tes. He talked long and earnestly with the members of the Commission, but what he said could not be learned. at was suggested, however, that Mr. Carlisie had a good deal to say about places that could be made in the Custom House for true and tried Democrats, if the investigation was carried on as it ought to be.

Mr. Hamlin said to a Tribune reporter after he left the meeting-room:

"I have spent the whole morning in conference with the Commission, discussing the scope of the investigation."

"I suppose you mean the legal scope of the investi-tion, and the direction that it will take," said the re-asked.

Yes; You know I am the Assistant Secretary of Treasury. I represent Mr. Carlisle, and I brought uctions from the Secretary for the Commissioners

There was a long fight in the Commission as to making the investigation public. There was considerable opposition to this, but the Commissioners decided finally to open the doors to the public.

Appraiser Marvelle W. Cooper was with the Commission for some time during the morning, and gave some valuable points for them to follow. The charges made by the Editor of "The Dry Goods Chronicle" also were read and considered. The Commission will meet this morning at 10:30 o'clock to begin the examination of witnesses.

IN MEMORY OF ALEXANDER B. STEPHENS

UNVEILED AT CRAWFORDSVILLE, GA.

Crawfordsville, Ga., May 24.-Admirers from all over Georgia congregated here to-day to do honor to the memory of Alexander H. Stephens, "the Great Commoner," by the unveiling this afternoon of the people of Georgia. The monument is a handsome structure of granite and marble. There are three bases, on which are sculptured wreaths of immortelles and suitable inscriptions. On the topmost one stands the statue of Mr. stephens. It represents him while he still retained his full vigor, and not as the invalid of later years in his rolling chair. The statue is supposed to represent Mr. Stephens while delivering famous speech, "Georgia and Ohlo Again." On one side is a passage from his Augusta speech

"I am afraid of nothing on earth, or above the earth, under the earth except to do wrong. The pat of duty, I shall endeavor to travel, fearing no evil and dreading no consequences." Another inscription "Here sleep the remains of one who dared to tell people they were wrong when he believed so, and who never intentionally deceived a friend or betrayed an enemy." On another side is the following, written by Richard Malcolm Johnston: "Throughout life a sufferer in body, mind and spirit, he was a signal example of wisdom, courage, fortitude, patience, of age called to be Governor of the State, he died while in the performance of the work of his office, and it seemed fit that having survived parents. brethren, sisters and most of the dear companions of his youth, he should lay his dving head upon the bosom of his people." On the side of the motument toward Liberty Hall is written, "The Great Com-moner. The defender of civil and religious liberty. He coveted and took from the Republic nothing sav-

GIRLS IN A PATERTON FACTORY GO ON STRIKE

WHEN THE WINDOWS ARE CLOSED. foreman in the textile works of William Strange & Co., at Interson, N. J., attempted to prevent the pretty girls employed there from flirting with passers by a few days ago. His attempt ended in and was the cause of a lively strike of the cirls. the windows of several rooms facing the street closed with boards, making it impossible for the girls to look into the street. The young women declared that the foreman's action was an abridgment of their natural rights. Accordingly a committee demanded the im-mediate removal of the boards. The demand was gnored, there was a strike, the girls stopped work and the trouble threatened to become serious, when Mr. Strange had the boards removed. It was announced yesterday that the girls had returned to work, after warning the foreman that any further attempts to

A week ago Colonel W. C. Church, of the Erlesson tatue committee, was requested by the Park Board to appear at its next meeting and explain why the had been inserted upon the pedestal at the Battery without authority from the Commissioners. The Colonel did not come to the meeting of the Board yesterday, but he sent a letter calling the attention of the Board to the fact that on April 24, when the monument was transferred to the Board's enstody, it ore no other inscription than the single werd "Ericsson," Colonel Church wrote further: "If anything has been anded it must have been with the in plied sanction of the Board of Parks. My only action with reference to the matter was to interpose to prevent the adoption of an inscription I did not consider in good taste." To prove his position, Colonel Church inclosed a letter to the sculptor, J. Scott Harriey, dated April 15. In this letter the Colonel said: "I have been trying to see you about the inscription upon the statue. Do not put upon it the mames of the Commissioners. This is positive. They might do upon a building, but are out of place on a statue. I certabily cannot consent to putting my name on in such a place. The simple mame 'Ericsson,' with the inscription I gave you, is all that is thus far authorized." Commissioner Dana repeated his criticism of Colonel Church, saying that he had treated the Park Commissioners with disrespect.

THE HAMBURG LINE'S PLEDGE. C. S. VAN RENSSELAER SAYS HE, TOO, WAS DECEIVED ABOUT THE NORMANNIA.

All the testimony to be given in court in the libel of Judge Alfred E. Beers, of Bridgeport, Conn., against the Hamburg-American Line steamer Nor-mannia for $10,000 damages has new been taken. oth sides will file affidavits and the summing up will take place before Judge Addison Brown in the United States District Court about the middle of June.

The first witness yesterday was Cortlandt S. Van Rensselaer, also a passenger on the Normannia, who like Judge Beers has filed a suit for damages for the detention in the Lower Bay and on Fire Island. Mr. Van Rensselaer bought his ticket in London on August 22, and then heard that the Normannia was to carry steerage passingers. He went to the Leadenhall-st. office of the Hamburg-American Line and said h would rather give up his ticket than sall on a vessel with emigrants. He was assured that the report which he had heard was untrue. The agent said he had just received a dispatch from his home office delaring that the Normannia would carry no passengers in the steerage. At the office in Cockspur-st, the witness was told the same thing.

For the defence, Karl Hebich, capia'n of the Nornannia and commodore of the line's fleet, was first called. He seld that the water on his ship was taken rom the Elbe, but was distilled before being used. He did not learn until after leaving Southampton that on the voyage to that port from Hamburg two pasengers became ill with diarrhoen. The steerage pas engers were in plain view when the tender brought out the callin passengers in Southampton Harbor. Captain Hebich said that two or three persons complained to him of the steerage pissengers and he gave those two or three an opportunity to go back to shore on the tender. They did not wish to do this, so he

Ten! A. Cahn, an ex-officer in the Austrian army, was another of the passengers who boarded the Normannia at Southampton. He said flust he saw the steerage passengers from the tender, and could have returned to land had he desired to do so.

Dr. Max Brener, the ship's physician, described the measures taken to disinfect the Normannia and told the history of the fatal cases of Illness. He was not sare that they were cholera.

of Japanese mattings has offered another novelty for Since the Japanese have taken held of the work. however, producing an artistic and serviceable article for the American trade, the material has come into more general use. In this city H. P. & Co., No. 250 Canal-st., show as varied and extensive a line of these goods as may be found outside the Mikado's Empire. The matting is made of a soft, freed-like grass, native to Japun and noted for its fine texture and great strength. It is woven on a cotton warp and is as flexible and pliable as cloth. In the designs into which the grass is woven in these mattings the native artistic instincts of the Japanese are strongly shown. The designs are varied and the colors used always harmonious. Used in combination with the rich, warm rugs of the Orient, no more appropriate nor beautiful floor covering for a country house may be found.

A BARBAROUS LYNCHING IN MICHIGAN,

EIGHT HUNDRED PER'ONS TAKE PART IN KILL ING A MURDERER.

Detroit, Mich., May 24 .- A dispatch from Corunna Mich., to "The Tribune," says: William Sullivan, the farm hand who brutally murdered his employer, Layton Leetch, and murderously assaulted the latter's wife, paid the penalty of his crime last night. He was taken from the jati and lynched at 9:40 o'clock, The mob consisted of over eight hundred men, who shouted themsolves bearse as the body dangled at the end of a rope. Just before he was taken from a cell, Sullivan attempted to commit suicide with a knife which he had in some manner concealed about his person. By means of sledges the jail was soon broken open by the mob, and a noose placed around his neck, when the crowd drugged him through the jail corridors to the big jail-yard, and to a low marshy square of ground about two hundred feet in the rear square of ground about two numbers teet in the rear of the juil building under an oak. Men fought, struggled and cursed for the privilege of helping to tug at the rope, which was thrown over a limb, and with a sudden jerk Sullivan, who had been lying motionless and apparently unconscious on the ground. was raised to a sitting posture; another pull and his head and shoulders were visible above the black mass

A terrible scene followed. The body was pushed from hand to hand and several drew their pocketfrom hand to hand and several drew their pocket-knives and lunged at the swinging corpse; others be-gan to tear the clothing, and in a few moments only the shreds of his shirt remained hanging to the shoulders. When the body was lowered to the ground portions of the mob which had been unable to get close enough to take a hand in the actual hanging seized upon the rope and dragged the life-less body through the mire. Afterward a crowd dragged it about the streets and around the court-house souare.

SHE ACCUSED FLORENCE DONOVAN.

DYING WORDS OF MARGARET MANZONI REPEATED IN COURT.

Dying Margaret Manzoni accused Florence F. Donevan, ex-member of the State Board of Arbitration, of having induced her to have the operation performed which caused her death. He gave her the money she needed for the purpose. She had relied on his promise to marry her, but when he lost his office, or was about to lose it, he told her he could not take care of her. On his advice she submitted to the operation from which she died.

The ante-mortem statement of the young woman was repeated in Part II of General Sessions yesterday by her mother, in the trial of Dr. Sera B. Chase on indicted with Donovan and Frederica Diemer, a nurse. Yesterday morning Assistant District-Attorrey Vernon M. Davis opened the case for the people. He said that the dead girl was the stendaughter of and was employed in the cloak department of a 26 she went to Mrs. Diemer to have an operation squadron, the Infanta Ysabel, the Spanish crutser, and performed, and then she went to Mrs. Chase's house for the same purpose.
